DIES SUDDENLY, AS RESULT OF HEART ATTACK

Death Ends 26-Year Legal Partnership With J. C. Boone

WAS LIFELONG RESIDENT OF CITY

Funeral Service Will Be Held at Home, At 2 P. M. Saturday

Attorney Ralph Waldo Campbell, lifelong resident of Salem, died suddenly of a heart attack at 3:30 p. m. Thursday at his office on Broadway.

His death came as a distinct shock not only to his family and intimate friends, but to the community as well, inasmuch as he had apparently been in usual health.

Att. Campbell was born in Salem March 2, 1877, son of Robert and Eliza J. (Lloyd) Campbell. He attended Salem public schools and Phillips academy, Andover, Mass.

He was graduated from Sheffield scientific school, Yale university, with the degree of Ph. D. in 1902.

Bar Association To Hold Memorial

The Columbiana County Bar association will hold a memorial service, in tribute to the late R. W. Campbell, at 12:30 p. m. Saturday in the Memorial building.

Following his graduation, he was employed for some time in the real estate business and, in the meantime, read law.

He was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1912 and to practice in the United States District court in 1914. He formed a partnership with J. C. Boone at the outset of his legal career and this partnership was maintained until the present time, after the firm name of Boone and Campbell.

He was a member of the American Bar association, the Ohio State bar association and the Columbiana County bar association.

He was a member of the A. U. V. W. of Andover, Mass., the Phi Kappa Psi chapter at Yale university, and was affiliated also with the Elks lodge, the Knights of Columbus and the Salem Golf club, in which he was especially active. He was a former director of the Golf club.

Interested in Civic Progress

He was a director of the Farmers National bank and served as attorney for the Mullins Manufacturing corp. He maintained a deep interest in the city's civic and welfare projects at all times.

He was married Oct. 11, 1905 to Mrs. R. W. CAMPBELL, Page 6

LET'S TALK ABOUT IT NOW

Increasing signs that an issue is growing out of popular interest in national defense are heartening. Open discussion of the subject will help everybody concerned.

Discussion should reveal that the United States is spending more money now for national defense and is theoretically stronger than it ever was before, except during the World war.

It should reveal that despite a cost of more than a billion dollars a year, an unparalleled naval program, an improved army and a first class air arm this nation is being pictured as poorly prepared to defend itself.

It should take into account the fact no nation on earth is impregnable and deal frankly with the futility of the most isolated of the great powers trying to arm itself against an enemy which does not yet exist.

It should put the cards on the table concerning the relationship between national defense, national politics, and a national war boom which would give this country an illusion of prosperity.

It should warn freely of the danger of hysteria and the temptation to yield to the martial spirit which flames up so quickly from the excitement of preparing to defend a cause.

If these topics were to be covered thoroughly, Americans would have nothing to fear from national defense. Otherwise, they will be lucky if a momentous national problem isn't permitted to become an easy talking point for political orators. Unfortunately, no one dares to oppose national defense once it reaches a stage of hysteria. If it's going to be talked about, it's now or never.

DOCTORS AREN'T TRADESMEN

Decision of the American Medical association to defend vigorously its point of view against a charge of Sherman anti-trust law violation must be interpreted in relation to the surrounding circumstances.

Briefly, they are as follows: Medical doctors are professional men, not tradesmen. Therefore, they argue, they are not regulated by the Sherman act. If doctors can be regulated by the Sherman act, then lawyers can be regulated too, which gives the legal profession something to think about.

However, since an issue has been raised, the association and those who agree that the type of medical practice it opposes is damaging to public health want a clear interpretation of the law. There is no inclination to leave the issue in the air.

The department of justice, itself, subscribes to this point of view. It explained last August that in proceeding against the American Medical association, affiliated societies and individual physicians, it did not take the view that the offenses committed reflected upon the character or standing of the persons involved in any way.

There has arisen a difference of opinion. A majority of doctors, interested in the welfare of their profession and its relations with the public, are lined up on one side. On the other side there is as yet no close organization, only a government department which must prove that a professional man is subject to the Sherman anti-trust act before it can proceed further.

GETTING WARM

"Now," Secretary Hull might have remarked when it became certain the Lima conference was opposed to recognizing territory gained by force in the western hemisphere, "let's go one more step."

"Let's adopt a resolution opposed to seizure of property anywhere in the two hemispheres. That would do more to inspire confidence and goodwill than anything we could think of."

What Secretary Hull would mean by such a proposal could not be misunderstood by other delegates. He would mean that the threat of confiscation hangs like a storm cloud over international relations in the American hemisphere.

United States capital cannot be invested freely in other countries without reasonable assurance of protection. The danger of confiscation as an act of domestic policy, which is what already has happened in Mexico, is more discouraging to capital investment than the danger of seizure by a European power.

PAN-AMERICAN ISSUE IS CLOUDED AGAIN

LIMA, Dec. 23.—The question of western hemisphere solidarity and defense slid today into as deep a fog of confusion as the Pan-American conference has yet seen.

With Dr. Carlos Concha, president of the conference, declaring flatly "we already have reached an agreement" and with Brazilian and Argentine delegations denying an agreement had been concluded, the delegates, including those from the United States, could not figure out where they stood.

Following Concha's statement last night that 20 republics had agreed to Argentina's declaration of continental solidarity and defense everyone thought an accord had been reached and began to celebrate.

But the celebrations were sobered when Argentine and Brazilian delegates demurred and Afraño Mello Franco, head of the Brazilian delegation, demanded of Concha why he had issued the statement.

Dr. Isidore Ruiz Moreno, chairman of the Argentine group, telephoned Buenos Aires this morning to ascertain exactly what his position was.

It was believed negotiations,

There is no single resolution the Lima conference could make which would do more to stimulate genuinely friendly relations and mutually profitable trade than outright condemnation of the practice which recently impaired confidence in the intentions of Mexico.

THE SAME LANGUAGE

Death of Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, the lexicographer, occurs at a time when a momentous thing is beginning to happen in the art of making dictionaries for the United States.

Radio—and a living standard making ownership of radios the rule, rather than the exception—is beginning to weed out from American speech many of the local differences in pronunciation which kept Dr. Vizetelly busy during a long lifetime.

Americans listen to announcers and unconsciously imitate them—and the announcers all speak the same language. In the course of events it even may turn out that Iowa can be pronounced Eye-o-wugh on a national broadcast without offending native eye-owuns, jealous of the good name of eye-o-wigh. Dictionaries will be reference books for meaning only, not for pronunciation.

Muscles, Bulk of the Body, Subject To Few Diseases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE MUSCLES make up the bulk (not most of the weight), however, and the form and contour of the body. The "living skeleton" whose muscles have all wasted hardly resembles a human being at all.

As machines, muscles are quite remarkable contraptions. They obey, with some exceptions, the laws of the stretching of an elastic body, such as a wire or a rubber band. All the pulleys, fulcrums and levers ever invented by man were modeled on the action of muscles on bones.

As to efficiency, any machine is measured on the basis of the ratio of the energy put out in mechanical form, divided by the total energy expended in the process. In the muscle, the energy which cannot appear as muscular work is degraded to heat and can be measured as such. The equation is: Efficiency equals Work—Work plus heat.

On this basis our muscles are about 50 per cent efficient. Few machines made by man show such efficiency. A steam engine is about 10 per cent efficient. It loses 20 per cent more of the energy in its fuel than the muscle.

Occupational Diseases

Fortunately, muscles are subject to few diseases. In a few rare cases, the muscles atrophy—this is the familiar living skeleton—but most muscular troubles are occupational diseases, confined to baseball and football players. I mean sprains, tears, "Charley horse", etc.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

For most people a great deal of the feeling of well being of the body depends on keeping the muscles fit by exercise. I have expressed myself on the subject of exercise many times with the result (not uncommon with my expressions) that I have been misunderstood. People say to me as I am taking my constitutional or playing golf, "Why! I thought you didn't believe in exercise."

All I said was that I did not subscribe to all the hooey of the "big muscle boys", that big muscles mean good health, or that exercise will make you live longer or keep you from catching cold.

Undoubtedly it makes you feel better and for most people thereby adds to the efficiency of their routine. I say "for most people" because for some—the thin asthenics—it is pure poison.

Set of Exercises

For the desk worker who cannot get out at the favorable hours these winter days, I saw the account of a set of exercises to take at the desk or in the wash room every hour or two:

1. Squeeze your eyelids together as tightly as you can, and blink them rapidly 20 times, with fingers pressed to temples. You will lose those notebook face cramps.

2. Put your arms up to the ceiling and stretch, stretch, stretch.

3. Lean over and pick up an envelope from the desk with your teeth. It's good for your neck.

4. Sit down or lie down (in the wash room) and put your legs up even with your head, massaging your calves as you do so.

5. Take your shoes off and squirm all over.

For those more fortunately placed and under 40, tennis and handball are good. For those over 50 or any age, walking rapidly is superb.

Questions and Answers

C. R. M.: "Am writing to ask your opinion of the X-ray method of removing tonsils." Answer: Opinions differ as to this. My personal advice would be that since surgical removal is so safe and effective, it should be the method of choice.

CITY SKATING POND

Editor The News: School boys are taking advantage of the city skating pond during vacation, but only about an acre is in skating order, with about 2½ acres, of about 4½ total area covered, due to the breast of the dam being 18 inches too low in places. A nice flow of water from Buttermilk run has been going into the pond since Dec. 15th by blocking the narrow channel with a dam.

The "Run" water level can still be raised about two feet without doing any harm at State street, provided it is lowered before heavy spring rains. The Smith well was turned in about 2:30 p. m. Monday, but now water is starting to creep over breast of dam. While there is some seepage at dam, the water flow from Run will take care of that, if we do not get a quick thaw.

By starting about July or August next year we could throw a dam across the low place near west well, to Rifle Range, and flood another large pond from Buttermilk Run, on a lower water level than the present one, thereby giving possibly a 10-acre area. All it takes is a little common sense and good judgment at the right time.

I believe our engineer will agree with me that it can be done. If not, council can give me the job and I will prove that it can, and it will not cost $200 a month salary either.

Two hours after the engine was brought on the scene work was started on the dam in the Run, and in two hours water was coming into the pond. A month earlier would have done the job better. We proved it can be done. There should be a cheap shelter shed, but that will come next year.

The city electric line to disposal plant passes by edge of pond, requiring only a transformer, two or three poles and wiring to light the pond for night skating.

Our ward councilman Zimmerman has frequently been over the job recently, and has helped a lot, but we need more interest and pressure from parents and general public.

GEORGE BRICKER.

"Often a Bridesmaid"

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXX

"I thought you didn't want to be efficient," Joe said.

"For myself, yes. I have to. How I get ahead if I'm not. But not for anybody else. I even take back what I said about talking back to taking some of the things if she wants cheap new stuff instead, it's her affair—hers and Chick's. And I simply refuse to get mixed up in Sue's love affairs again.... Joe, do you think she'll really marry Kenneth again?"

"Oh, Maggie—bless your heart."

"But I mean it kindly."

"You mean it all kindly?"

"Um.... sort of. But I guess I was a little bit Sue, wanting to be the star performer, only I wanted to be the stage manager and the playwright and all the off-stage noises and mobs, and she just wanted to be the star. And now, believe it or not, I'm just thinking of her. It does seem such a pity, after all the trouble she took to get that divorce. And yet, if there's anything in what you said, about her trying to use you to make Ken jealous...."

"Oh, Maggie—Maggie!" He was laughing as he hadn't laughed in weeks, in months—in years it seemed to him.

"I think you're horrible to laugh, when I break down and tell all," she said, but she was laughing, too.

He got up. "Come on—let's go out somewhere and celebrate."

"All right. No—I tell you, come on, let's get out in the kitchen and look up something the way we used to do."

"Still bossy," he protested, and she said, "Let's make some tomato and bacon sandwiches—if I can find some cheese. And coffee. Let's have coffee, too?"

She led the way out to the kitchen, and he followed, teasing and protesting, and put on one of her aprons as he used to do.

"Oh, bother—there's the door again. It's way after 11. Who in the world can it be?"

"Sue. Let's not answer it."

She hesitated. "No, it might be a special delivery letter or a telegram. I'd better go."

"I'll go, too."

He followed, her old apron in his hand.

"Why, Kenneth!"

Kenneth Raleigh stood in the doorway, hair rumpled, face distraught. "I want to see Sue!" he cried.

"She isn't here."

"Oh, yes, she is."

"Kenneth, I tell you she isn't."

"Don't lie, Margaret. And you needn't hide behind her skirts. At- well, for I know what you've been up to. You aren't even man enough to risk it on your own, having to come to Margaret's—where it is SAFE—where you think I wouldn't follow you—oh, you SWINE! You wife-stealer, you—"

"That's about enough, Kenny. You can't come here and start a row. If you have anything to say—"

Margaret pulled at Joe's coat— "No—let ME talk to him—"

"I'll handle this, Margaret."

"YOU'LL handle this. Like— THAT—you will!"

Like lightning Ken's fist went out—just as Margaret pushed herself forward. It struck her, right on the point of the chin.

When Margaret opened her eyes she was lying on the library sofa two very worried young men leaning over her, anxiously.

She watched them through her eyes, until memory came back. Then she closed her eyes again. She was all right, but her jaw hurt. That pugnacious Kenny, trying to hit Joe, and hitting her instead. Well, she wouldn't come to too quickly. He could just go on worrying for a while.

He was almost crying. I'd have cut off my right arm first. I—

"Not so loud. Wake Mrs. Werful up and we WILL be in trouble!" Joe whispered.

"I'm going to call a doctor. I'll go and get him myself."

"Well—" Joe hesitated. "Maybe it would be best. I think she's all right, but—"

Undoubtedly she'd been "out" long enough. Margaret opened her eyes, smiled faintly.

"Oh, Margaret—I'd have cut off my right arm. I'd have died before I'd have had this happen. I—"

"How do you feel, jaw hurt?" Joe asked anxiously.

She touched her chin with her fingers. "Um.... sort of sore. Did I fall?"

"No, I caught you, and Kenny really didn't do himself justice—it was just a glancing blow."

"It was meant for Joe!" Ken cried, defensively.

"Well, you're not to go hitting anybody around here," Margaret said. Her head hurt a little as she sat up. Ken was always making trouble. "You can go on home. And next time don't pick a fight just because you're told that Sue isn't around. Anyway—she isn't. I told you that in the first place."

"I know. Oh, Margaret—I'm so sorry. I can't tell you how I feel. What a mess I've made of everything. You don't know how I feel—how crazy I've been. —I can't even see the babies unless there's someone there watching me, and Sue acts so funny. I thought first she was going to come back to me. And now—"

He covered his face with his hands—"Now—I don't know."

"Poor Kenny." She touched his dark hair lightly. "It won't always hurt so. You get over things. Everybody gets over everything!"

"But not when it's love—not when it's real love—"

"I think so, Kenny. Anyway, if you ever expect Sue to care again you'll have to make her respect you, and she never will as long as you beg her, and fly all around, making fusses over everything!"

"You said it, Maggie," Joe said.

"Oh, I know—you're right. But it's so damned hard. I turned down a swell coaching job because I was afraid she'd come back and I wouldn't be able to be where she is. I—"

"Can you still get it?"

"Cinch! Say, the fellow they've got now is NOTHING. He sees it himself. Can't handle men. Oh, he's all right for an assistant—but as head coach! It's pitiful! Why, Joe here, would do as well. Joe, he has some of the craziest ideas. Doesn't believe in scrimmage. Not at all. Not in a single practice—"

Margaret shut her eyes again. Kenny and his talk. If he'd only go.

Joe got rid of him finally. "Well, he's gone now, Maggie. Gee, I'm sorry about the whole thing."

She smiled up at him. "It's nothing. Doesn't even hurt! Poor Kenny. Don't you feel sorry for him?"

"Oh, he'll be all right."

"Yes, I suppose he will." She frowned, trying to concentrate on Kenny and his troubles, but she was too tired—and too comfortable. Joe took her hand in his. He had Kenny, you know. That you do get over things. I know."

"There's something I never got over."

"Then you didn't try hard enough!" She pulled her hand away, because it was shaking idiotically. She, with shaking hands! It was crazy. It was disgusting.

"Oh, yes I did. And I almost succeeded for a little while. But it didn't work, Margaret—"

He took her hand again, and again she jerked it away. She was too upset. Too defenseless. He'd seen that she cared. She'd let herself be hurt again. And anything would be better than that! Anything!

"Joe, it's scandalously late, and I haven't done any packing, and you forget that I'm a working girl who must be up before 7."

"And you really ought to be on your way, Joe."

"I know."

"He didn't move."

"I mean it, Joe."

"I know."

"Joe—you must—"

"Listen, I've got a business proposition. I like this house. I always liked it. I want to live in it. Will you sell it to me?"

"It isn't mine. It's daddy's."

"Well, he can't refuse to sell it to me instead of someone else, can he?"

"No—no. I don't suppose so. Joe—you don't mean that."

"Oh, yes I do." He took out his checkbook and reached for his pen. "I'll make a down payment right now. A thousand dollars all right?"

"Oh, heavens, yes. But I don't know yet what it's worth! And what would you ever do... Oh, Joe—WHAT would you do with it?"

"Well, I have it appraised. By the real estate people."

"But what will you DO with it?"

"You know."

"You're not going to live in it?"

"Certainly."

"But Joe—Joe—I—"

"Needs a little fixing up. I suppose. Would you help with the decorating?"

"Joe—you don't want this house. You can't want it. Say it—Joe. Say what you want to do—"

"I tried twice, and you wouldn't let me! You know what I want."

"No, Joe—I don't!"

"I want you to live in the house with me. I want your aunt to go on to England, and leave us alone. I want you to quit your job—"

She shook her head. "No—no—"

AGE PENSIONERS TO GET CHECKS

Most of December Benefits Being Paid Before
Christmas

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Dec. 23.—Most of Ohio's 112,000 old age pensioners
will receive their December benefits before Christmas. State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson as additional checks were rushed into the mails today.
Delayed nearly two weeks, the checks totaling $2,500,000 were started out late yesterday following transfer of $1,000,000 from the liquor rotary fund to pensioners on order of Finance Director M. Ray
Allison.

Employees of the auditor's office
worked overtime to complete the mailing, despite the prospect that some checks would be caught in the holiday rush and their arrival delayed until next week.
The state normally could have borrowed the $1,000,000 from its general revenue fund, but that amount already had been withdrawn to pay the federal government's 50 per cent share of October pensions.
The national social security board
withheld its share of October funds
as the result of a dispute with Gov.
Martin L. Davey over administration of the state division of aid for the aged. Governor Davey in a letter to the board charged the
state had been "robbed".
The controversy also delayed
November checks so that pensioners
will receive awards for the last
two months of the year this month.
Allison acted to make funds for the month available after Ferguson had asserted that the finance director would be responsible for any further delay.

Order Retrial
CLEVELAND, Dec. 23.—Common Pleas Judge Frank S. Day today ordered a retrial of the first degree murder charges against Mrs. Agnes Sekarek, 32, accused of hanging her husband, John, on May 4, 1936, after giving him sleeping tablets.
Judge Day discharged a jury of eight men and four women yesterday after they had deliberated 24 hours.

New Ivory
SHINNISTOWN, W. Va. — J. T.
Cameron, 81, is getting a Christmas that only nature can give—but seldom does.
Cameron decided he needed artificial teeth.
"Don't be in a hurry," advised the dentist. He told Cameron two of a third set of molars were forcing their way through his gums.

Gone Again
FINDLAY.—Charles Hickman is looking for his car again.
It was stolen last night and found abandoned today. Hickman went to get it, but the keys were missing. So he went to a garage to get a towing truck.
When he returned, the car was gone.

AGE PENSIONERS TO GET CHECKS

Most of December Benefits Being Paid Before
Christmas

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Dec. 23.—Most of Ohio's 112,000 old age pensioners
will receive their December benefits before Christmas. State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said additional checks were rushed into the mails today.

Delayed nearly two weeks, the
checks totaling $2,500,000 were
started out late yesterday following transfer of $1,600,000 from the liquor rotary fund to pensioners on
order of Finance Director M. Ray
Allison.

Employees of the auditor's office
worked overtime to complete the
mailing, despite the prospect that
some checks would be caught in the
holiday rush and their arrival delayed until next week.

The state normally could have borrowed the $1,000,000 from its general revenue fund, but that amount already had been withdrawn to pay the federal government's 50 per cent share of October pensions.

The national social security board
withheld its share of October funds
as the result of a dispute with Gov.
Martin L. Davey over administration of the state division of aid for the aged. Governor Davey in a letter to the board charged the
state had been "robbed".

The controversy also delayed
November checks so that pensioners
will receive awards for the last
two months of the year this month.
Allison acted to make funds for
the month available after Ferguson had asserted that the finance
director would be responsible for
any further delay.

Gone Again

FINDLAY.—Charles Hickman is
looking for his car again.

It was stolen last night and found
abandoned today. Hickman went
to get it, but the keys were missing. So he went to a garage to get
a towing truck.

When he returned, the car was
gone.

College romance in the modern manner, with its inevitable problems of love and economics, provides a theme for the story of "Spring Madness" which will be seen at the State Saturday only.

Maureen O'Sullivan and Lew Ayres head a topnotch cast.

Others in prominent roles include Ruth Hussey, last seen with Ayres in "Rich Man, Poor Girl," Burgess Meredith, who has scored in one hit after the other on the New York stage, Ann Morris, Joyce Compton, Jacqueline Wells, Frank Albertson, Truman Bradley and Marjorie Gatenon. The picture is based on the Philip Barry stage success, "Spring Dance," adapted from an original play by Eleanor Golden and Eloise Barrangon.

Breaks Engagement

The story tells of a girl student at a New England school who falls in love with a man from Harvard. He is entirely serious about it, but in his initial emotion overlooks the fact that marriage without a job is scarcely practical. Then, too, he has been pledged for months to go abroad on graduation, because the prospects of a job at home are negligible.

Bravely he breaks off the engagement and bravely the girl accepts it. But she begins to fail in her studies and her friends sense that she is losing her grip. This brings in the activities of a group of sorority girls and college men who develop complications with amusing rapidity.

The Harvard youth realizes that nothing is so important as the girl and at the spring dance, when he finds her in the arms of a handsome young professor, he goes into action.

The story presents an engaging picture of college life today, with the colorful types that comprise the American student body.

Brown Film Concludes

"Flirting With Fate," starring Joe E. Brown concludes tonight at the State theater.

The Texas Rangers, who have figured heroically in many a screen story, again have their day in "Come on, Rangers" showing at the Grand tonight and Saturday, with a new chapter of the serial, "The Lone Ranger."

Roy is cast as the ex-Ranger smarting under the disbanding of his company by the Governor's orders to save expense. Roy joins the U. S. Cavalry but quickly learns that a mountain of red tape which ties up the Army activities makes it inadequate to cope with the epidemic of lawlessness which has scourged Texas since the Rangers were disbanded.

A crooked politician attempts to foist upon the tax payers his own paid organization, the "State Patrol" to take the place of the Rangers, but Roy realizes that this is merely a "front" created by the politician to cloak his own "White Horse Gang" who are terrorizing the Texas ranches.

When Roy's brother is murdered in cold blood by the White Horse Raiders he escapes from the Cavalry and establishes law in his own manner.

Raymond Hatton, J. Farrell MacDonald, Bruce Macfarlane, Mary Hart, Purnell Pratt, Lane Chandler and Harry Woods, round out the supporting cast.

Other Salem Industrial Leaders Speak Optimistically

kitchen equipment to a New Orleans, La., distributor.

Spokesmen for the Mullins Mfg. Corp., today appeared more optimistic, concerning business for the new year, than they have been for several months. "The trend is definitely toward improvement," they said.

Officials of the Deming Co. expressed, generally, satisfaction with conditions during the year and, barring unforeseen contingencies, look for as good a year in 1939, possibly better.

Another note of optimism was sounded by L. W. Nash, manager of the L. W. Bliss Co., who announced that there are definite signs of a pickup in the rolling mill and rolling mill equipment industry which will undoubtedly be felt here. Business during the year just ending has been fair, he commented.

Despite a lull at the present, officials of the Electric Furnace Co. held hope for improvement and a general business gain after the first of the year. Employees of the firm yesterday got their annual treat of a live turkey apiece.

baric persecution of the Jews, is to interfere with her economic development.

He predicted there would be full senate discussion next month of German-American relations. Many members of congress, surprised by the Welles-Thomson exchange, deferred comment until they could study the situation. But Senator Hatch (D-NM) said he believed both Ickes and Pittman had voiced the sentiments of the American people.

The state department had recoiled with frank astonishment the German protest against Secretary Ickes' Cleveland speech, in which he declared that for a comparison with modern dictatorships it was necessary to go back to a "period of history when man was unlettered, benighted and bestial."

Plain Language

Welles' point-blank refusal to apologize was delivered in some of the plainest language which the state department has used in 20 years. It was generally believed President Roosevelt knew of its intention to speak out.

Welles told Dr. Thomson that recent Nazi policies had shocked American public opinion more profoundly than anything that had taken place in many decades, and that public indignation here was incalculable.

Welles was particularly aroused by many slighting references to President Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson by German newspapers and officials whom he told Thomson the United States knew were completely under the influence and dictation of the Hitler government.

Charles S. Freed Honored At School

Charles Sydney Freed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Freed, gave the first public performance of a sonata for piano, which he composed last summer, in a recital last Friday in Pomerene hall at Ohio State university.

Freed, graduate of Salem High school, and well known in music circles here, wrote the sonata in three movements which include allegro con moto, saraband and allegro molto e con ritmo vigoroso. Faculty members and audience accorded the musician exceptional recognition, commenting favorably on the work and execution of the number.

Freed is taking work leading to a degree in arts and music, specializing in theory and composition. He is a sophomore at Ohio State, where he plays first chair solo horn in the university's marching and concert band.

During his high school career he was drum major of the band, editor of the Quaker, annual and weekly school publication. He is the composer of the official school song, "The Quaker Drive On Song."

Aircraft Factory Worker Convicted

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—A Christmas present in the form of a possible two-year prison term faced Karl Allen Drummond, 21, former aircraft factory worker, as he appeared today for sentence on an espionage conviction growing out of attempts to sell Japan photographs and drawings of a revolutionary new naval airplane.

Federal Judge Leon Yankwich late yesterday found the former Wichita, Kas., youth guilty of stealing documents and blueprints from the airplane factory where he worked and where secret military and naval planes are being constructed.

"It is fortunate that you did not sell the blue prints to Japan," the judge said, after the government presented testimony that Drummond had offered his information to that country's agents. "That would have been a grave offense punishable by 20 years in prison."

High Scoring Althouse Motors Trounce Carroll Comets

SILVER STREAKS NOSE OUT RIVAL CLASS A CAGERS

Texaco Quintet and Carroll Cadets Cop Wins In Class B Games

The high-scoring Althouse Motors displayed their power in the Class A basketball league for the second time of the season last night, walloping the previously unbeaten Carroll Comets, 41 to 14.

The Motors held the Comets to seven points in the first half, while piling up 22 markers to their own credit. They added 19 points in the second half and again held the Carroll quintet to seven markers.

Gordy Scullion, Sammy Drakulich and Earl Zelle led the Motors, scoring with Scullion collecting nine points and Drakulich and Zelle each getting eight.

It was the Motors' second victory in as many league games, while it was the Comets' first defeat in three starts.

The Silver Streaks remained among the Class A loop's leading teams by losing out to the Betise Club, 14 to 13, in the other senior circuit game. The victory was the second in a row for the Streaks.

The contest was close throughout with the Silver Streaks holding a slight edge in the scoring. The Streaks led 6 to 4 at halftime.

Class B league games saw the Texaco quintet chalk up its second victory in as many games by trouncing the Christians, 21 to 15, and the Carroll Cadets posted their first win by defeating Demings, 25 to 19.

B. Kimes hooped five field goals and one free throw to score 11 points in leading the Motors to their victory. The Christians held a 10 to 8 lead at halftime, but a second half rally brought the Texaco team the victory.

B. Rogers and Ed Zilavy scored seven and six points, respectively, to pace the Carroll Cadets. The Cadets were far out in front at halftime, holding an 11 to 3 advantage.

REGINA, Sask.—Jack Bannister.

Woodrow, farmer, got a rough and hurried undressing while examining his combine in a field. The cuff of his trouser leg caught in the machinery and in a few seconds the amazed farmer, slightly bruised, was left standing in only his hat and boots.

BOWLING RESULTS

The leading Merit Shoes of the Commercial league took it on the chin in two out of three games with the Ohio Bell at the Grate Recreation alleys last night, but the defeats did not drop the Shoemen out of the top-ranking position.

Smith's Creamery remained in second place by taking two out of three games from Grate's West End Service, while the Salem Polo Club held to third place in winning two out of three with the Salem Polo Club.

Other matches saw the Grate Recreation team take two out of three games from the Crescent Machine and Berg Bretzels, while the Grate Service team won three heats from the Leontonia Super Service. A scheduled match between the Salem News and Washingtonville Odd Fellows was postponed at the request of the News.

Good scores were common during the Commercial league activity with Pinboy Jimmy Yuhaz, who bowls with the Grate Service team, leading the maple topping with a 699 series, including games of 188, 233 and 179. Ralph Gregg of the Grate Recreation team had 598, while Dallas DeRholes and Ted Detwiler of the Salem Polo Club had 593 and 588 respectively.

LOTS OF ROOM MADE FOR 1939 ROOKIE STARS

Baseball Trades Make Room for New Crop Of Players

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Since the end of the world series every major league baseball except the Philadelphia Athletics has figured to some extent in the buying, selling or trading of players. Yet the principal conclusion to be drawn from a survey of the autumn ivory bartering is that a lot of room has been made for the 1939 rookie crop.

About a half dozen deals were important enough to be announced to the public in big, black headlines. They may have profited the participants, but the main movement has been the shifting of "deadwood"—players past their prime or who hadn't proved especially useful in their old positions—either to new spots or clear out of the big league picture.

Since October Chick Hafey (Reds) and Wild Bill Hallahan (Phillies) have been handed outright releases. Shipped off to the minors were Joe Casarella and Dee Moore (Reds), Phil Weintraub (Phillies), Bill Cassell (Giants), Jim Asbell, Tex Carleton and Cooker Triplett (Cubs), Bobby Reis (Bees), Roy Henshaw (Cards), Gilly Campbell (Dodgers), Bill Harris (Red Sox) and Jo Jo White and Tony Piet (Tigers).

White and Piet figured in one of the most important deals, the Tigers' purchase of young Freddie Hutchinson from Seattle for a large wave of cash and four players, two of them minor leaguers. Yet they had one thing in common with most of the others: They're veterans who no longer were able to hold regular places.

Then there were other veterans, most prominent among them Zeke Bonura, who were passed from one league to another by the waiver route or who caught on with a new club after having been released by the old one.

Eight American league clubs couldn't use Bonura, but the New York Giants figure he's just the man to tend first base and belt homers for them. Brooklyn picked up Luke Sewell, veteran catcher, on waivers from the Chicago White Sox. The Dodgers expect him to lend a hand developing some young pitchers as well as relieving Babe Phelps. They also signed on Tony Lazzeri after he had obtained his release from the Cubs.
